Code Clerks In Russia

Rap U. S. Spying

MOSCOW (AP) — Two code clerks missing from secret jobs in a U. S. agency turned up in Moscow Tuesday with a declaration that the United States spies even on its own allies.

The men, Bernon F. Mitchell, 31, and William H. Martin, 29, expressed belief that U.S. intelligence policies will lead to World War III.

They appeared at a Soviet-staged news conference less than two weeks after the trial of U2 plane pilot Francis Gary Powers and just two weeks before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in a personal appearance before the United Nations is expected to seek U. N. action against the United States for what the Soviet Union calls aggressive policies.

Appearance of the code clerks fits in with the current "distrust America" campaign being waged in Communist countries.

One of the reasons they left their jobs with the National Security Agency in the United States, they said, was disgust at finding the organization had paid a code clerk in the embassy of a friendly country for information about that country's codes. In answer to a question, they identified the country as Turkey, one of the United States' staunchest allies and the object of assiduous wooing by the Soviet Union.

They said they want to become Soviet citizens. The Soviet government said it is willing.

Mitchell and Martin also:

Complain Of Flights

Complained about American reconnaissance flights over the Soviet Union and Red China since 1952.

Said they planned their defection more than a year ago. Contended atheists are persecuted and persons with unpopular views harassed in the United States.

Refused to say how they got here, since this "might prevent others from taking the same route."

(U.S. authorities said a Russian traveler smuggled the two traitors to the Soviet Union after picking them up secretly in a Cuban port).

Mitchell said: NSA headquarters at Ft. Meade is a building second in size only to the Pentagon in Washington. Maintenance costs $100 million a year. The NSA network has 2,000 radio interception stations around the world and 8,000 operators staffing them. The annual cost of running the stations and relaying information is $380 million—making the total cost of the NSA program almost $500 million a year.

They said Britain and Canada cooperate closely in the radio cryptography program.

They said they became aware of American flights over Russia and Red Chinese borders in 1952 when both were stationed in Japan as Navy communications technicians.

"So far as I know the Soviet Union has not engaged in any analogous activity against the United States," Martin said. He said he condemns American spy flights and puts them "in a different category from other forms of espionage."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two defecting American code clerks — branded by President Eisenhower as "self-confessed traitors" — have become turncoat tools of Soviet propaganda, the Defense Department said Tuesday night. It said one was mentally sick and both obviously confused.

Earlier, Chairman Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said he understands the FBI warned before Bernon F. Mitchell and William H. Martin were hired in 1957 — that one of them was a homosexual.

The Pentagon didn't say which of the two it referred to as mentally ill. Walter said he could not identify which one he meant.

Asked about Walter's allegation, a Defense Department spokesman said the Pentagon stood on its statement of last Friday — that "the FBI files contained no derogatory information" about the two men in connection with their NSA employment.

Mitchell and Martin triggered a violent U.S. reaction when they appeared at a news conference in Moscow and accused the United States of following espionage policies that threatened world peace. Walter's committee promptly began laying groundwork for hearings which could blossom into perhaps the most startling of their kind since the communists-in-government exposes of a decade ago.

Walter announced the hearings will begin Sept. 16. He indicated some legislation may result.

In its statement Tuesday night, the Pentagon said:

"The Soviets are now making every effort to exploit the two turncoats, Martin and Mitchell, who have become tools of Soviet propaganda and to make the world believe the false statements which they have made in Moscow."

"Both the letters from which they read and statements made in Moscow about the U.S. government are directed at serving communist purposes and are typically false. Their appearance in Moscow is final confirmation that these two young men—one mentally sick and both obviously confused—have sacrificed everything Americans and other free men hold dear."

A Defense Department spokesman acknowledged the Pentagon has had since early August a letter Mitchell and Martin said they left in a safe deposit box in the State Bank of Laurel, Md., before leaving the country. The spokesman said it was seized under court order.

The defectors read copies of that letter at the Moscow news conference. It gave their reasons for abandoning their country—because, they said, the United States is carrying out policies dangerous to world peace, among other things.

Mitchell and Martin told reporters they wrote on the envelope a request that the contents be made public so the American people would know why they decided to ask political asylum in Russia.

Although their defection had been suspected for weeks, official Washington was shaken by the news that Mitchell, 31, of Eureka, Calif., and Martin, 29, of Ellensburg, Wash., had come out with a blast at the United States.

Bachelor Buddies
White House press secretary James C. Hagerty relayed to newsmen Eisenhower's view that the two bachelor buddies are traitors by their own admission.

Rep. Francis E. Walter

An investigator for the Committee on Un-American Activities went to the supersecret National Security Agency, where Mitchell and Martin had worked since 1957, in an effort to subpoena personnel and employment information on the two men from NSA files.

NSA was reported to have begun a sweeping investigation of its own, with many friends and associates of the two men subjected to questioning.

The agency is a defense unit which works around the clock intercepting radio signals and in communications intelligence, including codes. Its headquarters are at Ft. Meade, Md., about 20 miles from Washington.

Apart from the security aspects of the situation, officials were concerned that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would use the spy charges made by the defecting Americans to mount a new propaganda offensive against the United States when he appears at the United Nations late this month.

Families Contacted
In Eureka, Mitchell's older brother, Emory Mitchell Jr., said the family felt the two men were kidnapped in Havana and that he still thinks there was some kind of foul play. The brother described Bernon Mitchell as a political conservative and said he never has been interested in world affairs.

In Ellensburg, Martin's family declined to speak to newsmen about the defection. A friend of the family said Martin's parents believe that if their son is in Moscow, "he is there under duress."

After rumors of their defection circulated here, the Defense Department said on Aug. 5 that "it must be assumed that there is a likelihood" they had gone behind the Iron Curtain.

At the time, the Pentagon said its investigation indicated that information in the possession of Martin and Mitchell, "if revealed, could in no way be prejudicial to the security of United States communications."

Walter has said he is convinced the Soviet Union had advanced information of the ill-fated U2 flight on May 1 and the July flight of an RB47 reconnaissance bomber downed over the Barents Sea.

"And I think there is a strong possibility the two incidents tie in with these missing agents," Walter said.

102 Killed, 200 Missing In Hurricane

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Great floods and high tides from hurricane Donna swept Caribbean coastal communities Tuesday, leaving a trail of death and destruction.

Whether the hurricane, packing winds of 125 m.p.h. and deluges of water, would hit the U.S. mainland remained in doubt Tuesday night.

But because a westerly shift in the storm's course was considered possible, interests in the Bahamas and southeastern U.S. were urged to keep in touch with all hurricane advisories during the next several days.

The mounting toll in Puerto Rico reached 102 dead Tuesday night and 200 persons were missing, the island's civil defense reported.

Southeast Of Miami

The town of Humacao, where 62 deaths were reported, was said to be a morass. Red Cross reports put the number of injured across the island at 600.

An advisory from the U.S. Weather Bureau placed the hurricane about 95 miles east-northeast of Turks Island in the Bahamas. This would put it about 700 miles east southeast of Miami, Fla.

The Weather Bureau said Donna is moving west-northwestward at 9 m.p.h.

Three deaths were reported in Port Au Prince, capital of Haiti. The big storm took at least seven lives Monday in the Leeward Islands. Five of these victims were killed on Anguilla, the other two on Antigua Island.

Millions In Damages
Damage is expected to run into millions of dollars said civil defense and Red Cross officials.

The hurricane slashed its way east of Puerto Rico Monday through the Leeward Islands, but drenched Puerto Rico with 11-inch rains. The island of Barbuda in the Leewards was severely hit. Medicine, food, clothing and blankets were flown in from Jamaica.

Hardest hit in Puerto Rico was the area around Humacao, a town of 11,000 on the southeast shore. Augustin Caban, Red Cross administrator there, said 44 bodies were recovered from the surging waters of the Humacao river and its tributaries.

Many beach residents who fled to high ground before the storm apparently returned afterward, despite the warning of possible floods.

A Red Cross spokesman said many deaths could have been avoided had the beach dwellers stayed on the safety of high ground.

Lodge Praises Nixon As Able, Experienced Man

ABINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge brought his campaign for the vice presidency into popular Pennsylvania Tuesday night and said the basic contest in the world is a "life and death struggle" between the Communists and the Free World.

The Republican vice presidential nominee said in a speech to a GOP rally:

"The basic contest in the world today is no old-fashioned traditional partisan rivalry between the Republicans and the Democrats. The basic contest is the life and death struggle between the Communists on the one hand and those who insist on being free on the other."

"This is what gives this election of 1960 its compelling, overwhelming importance to us and to the world. The world is watching this election. And it imposes on us all the duty to give nothing less than our very best, our most experienced, our most talented to the presidency or our beloved country."

Lodge lauded Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the GOP presidential nominee, as a man with energy and rich experience. He also described the GOP nominee as a man with a "tough, penetrating, resilient intelligence."

Lodge also had warm praise for the eight-year record of the Eisenhower Administration and said it has been a period "in which our house has been put in order, our nation has grown stronger, and although the world is full of danger and mystery, peace in certain specific ways appears to be a little closer."

"Richard Nixon has shown that he can stand up to the Russians," Lodge said at another point in his speech. "But he also has shown that he is a peace maker."

Striking Unions Reject PRR Settlement Offer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Michael Quill, head of the transport workers, said Tuesday the two striking unions have turned down the Pennsylvania Railroad's offer for settlement on the basis of binding arbitration of three key issues.

"Work rule disputes are not a proper subject for arbitration," said Quill as he emerged from the first joint meeting of top level negotiators since 10,000 maintenance employees struck the PRR six days ago.

Quill said he agreed to a joint meeting because Mayor Richardson Dilworth insisted upon it, but added, "I wouldn't say we are any closer together than we were when the strike started."

"If we ever considered binding arbitration on those issues," Quill continued, "Secretary Mitchell fouled it up completely. Not that we would have agreed to it, anyway."

Quill alluded to his explosive exchange with Secretary of Labor Mitchell over the Labor Day holiday.

Mitchell, speaking on a Washington television news discussion program Sunday, asserted that Quill was unreasonable in his dispute with the PRR and disregard of the public's welfare.

Quill retorted that Mitchell had told lies about the striking unions and their aims, and was throwing the weight of the Eisenhower Administration against the strikers.

Francis O'Neill, federal mediator, said after Tuesday's summit meeting broke up that there had been some discussion of the main problems.

Quill postponed a 13-state tour of the 46 striking locals in order to meet with the railroad's top men, Board Chairman James M. Symes and President Allen Greenough.

Asked whether he intended to do about the tour now, Quill replied: "I have no plans. It's a matter of wait and see. Besides, my car has a flat tire."

Wages are not an issue in the dispute.

At issue are job classification, contracting of repair work with outside firms, and a union jurisdictional problem.

The railroad claims that agreement has been reached on 23 of 27 points in dispute. It now offers to submit three of the remaining four to binding arbitration.

The fourth point, the railroad says, is a jurisdictional dispute and should be settled by the unions themselves.

In the only comment on the railroad's proposal, a union spokesman said: "It is not correct and yet not absolutely incorrect" that 23 issues have been tentatively agreed upon.

Kennedy Calls For New Set Of Goals

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy said Tuesday the next president of the United States must come up with a new set of goals if this nation is to rank first in defense.

Kennedy, who is striving mightily to be that next president, brought his Democratic campaign to the West with this theme: That only by being strong can the United States bargain with the Soviets for peace.

"It is an unfortunate fact," Kennedy said in his speech, "that we can prepare for peace only by preparing for war."

Kennedy's view of how this is to be accomplished. "That requires only one kind of defense policy — a policy summed up in one word—first."

"I mean first in military power across the land and first in diplomacy, prestige, science, education and economic strength."

"The next president of the United States," Kennedy said, "whether he is a Democrat or a Republican, and whether he likes it or not, must be prepared to submit to the new Congress a whole new set of defense goals."

It will require a re-evaluation of our commitments around the world—a re-evaluation of our base system, a re-evaluation of our weapons and strategy and a re-evaluation of our budgetary policies."

"Peace is our deepest aspiration," he said. "And when peace comes, we will gladly convert, not our swords into plowshares, but our bombs into reactors and our missiles into space vehicles."

Kennedy insisted only strength can sway the Soviet Union's Nikita Khrushchev.

"We cannot do that by arguing with him—and we can't do that by smiling at him," Kennedy said.

It was another busy day for Kennedy.

At Spokane, he put out a statement in which he called for "a fresh and imaginative program to meet the problems of our nation's wheat farms."

Kennedy said this means getting rid of the surpluses by feeding the hungry at home and abroad—and then cutting production, through both bushel and acreage controls. Kennedy gave no details on how he expects to accomplish this.

Sendoff Set For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big sendoff rally is planned for Monday at nearby Baltimore's Friendship Airport to re-launch Vice President Richard M. Nixon on his cross-country presidential campaign.

This was reported Tuesday by Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, in telling newsmen that the vice president continues excellent progress in combating the infected knee that has kept him hospitalized for more than a week.

Klein said Henry Cabot Lodge, Nixon's vice presidential running mate, will be at the rally when the GOP presidential nominee takes off 10:45 a.m. (EDT) for Indianapolis, Dallas and San Francisco.

It is possible President Eisenhower also will be there, Klein said.

LEOPOLDVILLE the Congo,

(AP) — Gunfire crackled for an hour Tuesday evening after police broke up a demonstration by opponents of Patrice Lumumba, who was deposed as premier by presidential order but has refused to quit office. The demonstrators were partisans of Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

The security guard at United Nations headquarters was immediately strengthened but there was no indication of heavy or continued fighting.

(This dispatch was timed 6:45 p.m. Leopoldville time. Several hours later the South African radio said all communication with Leopoldville had been cut off for the night after the evening's shooting.)

Several hundred members of opposition parties in trucks, cars, buses and bicycles headed for Lumumba's residence to demonstrate their dissatisfaction with the unpredictable left-leaning political leader.

Along the Avenue Vaïke, a few hundred yards from Lumumba's residence, gray-clad police directed by a civilian stopped the procession.

The policemen dropped to their knees and fired a volley over the procession. A truck careened into the ditch. The terror-stricken demonstrators fled between villas bordering the road.

Police fired for long periods and then followed the luckiest demonstrators. Some took refuge in the homes of whites.

A Red Cross station reported seven persons including two policemen were treated for injuries—none by gunfire.

Police slashed tires on the demonstrators' vehicles and smashed bicycles. From jeeps racing through the downtown section, police fired at running figures.

Motorists proceeded cautiously along the main boulevard listening for the firing. One demonstrator said his colleagues were members of Jean Bolikango's Puna party, President Joseph Kasavubu's Abako party and Albert Ka-lonji's National Congolese Movement. All are opposed to Lumumba.

Ghana U.N. troops attempted to intervene with police as several prisoners were being beaten. At one point the U.N. forces and Congolese troops stood on opposite sides of the street shouting at each other.

Meanwhile, the United Nations, moving to restore peace, snuffed out the airlift of Congolese troops in Russian-made planes by blocking all airports. The United Nations also took over Leopoldville Radio putting an end to inflammatory speeches by political leaders.

Plane Crashes On Field, Misses Football Players

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—A single-engine plane crashed on a college football field Tuesday, narrowly missing 16 players who had just turned out for practice.

Before the plane hit, nose down, a section of the door fell at the feet of a player who was running for a forward pass.

Two burned and disfigured bodies—those of a man and a young woman—were removed from the four-seater plane.

"We were having a catch and talking," said Al Filoreto, a 20-year-old sophomore quarterback at Pennsylvania Military College.

Wing Folded

"I heard this puttering sound and I looked up. A plane was circling the field. It circled once and pieces seemed to come off. Then the right wing folded. It banged against the side of the plane which went into a spin.

"It came straight down and crashed without bouncing. The plane folded like an accordion," he said.

Bruce Kunkle, 19, was running for a pass when he heard the plane and looked up.

"It appeared to be coming right at me," he said. "I started running in the opposite direction, back toward the other fellows, but I stopped when I heard the plane crash. The door fell two or three feet from me. I don't know what happened to the football I was trying to catch."

Safe-Cracking Job Seen Work Of Professionals

INVESTIGATORS said yesterday the burglary of a safe at the Penn-Dell Dairy, 665 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, apparently was the work of professionals.

A State Police detective from the Wyoming barracks checked the safe yesterday for fingerprints. The result of his investigation was not announced.

Donald G. Quick, assistant East Stroudsburg police chief, said he had ruled out the possibility that local juveniles might have been responsible for the burglary.

He said the safe burglary was a "punch" job—in which the burglars knocked the dial off the safe and then used special tools to punch out the lock. They apparently brought their own tools with them, Quick said. An undetermined amount of cash and checks was taken.

At Thruway Intersection

Two Hurt Seriously In Accident

FOUR MEN were injured, two seriously in an accident at the cloverleaf intersection of Route 402 and the Stroudsburg Thruway about 1:10 a.m. yesterday.

In guarded condition in Monroe County General Hospital are Samuel Avia, 41, of 293 Morris St., Phillipsburg, N. J., identified by State Police as the driver of the car, and Mose Fink, 56, of 2306 Forest St., Wilson.

Avia suffered broken ribs and deep cuts of the left arm and chest, while Fink suffered a compound fracture of the skull, body bruises and a broken middle finger on the right hand.

Treated at the hospital dispensary were Gilbert Toff, 47, of 910 Ferry St., and Donald Aaron, 45, of 919 Lehigh St., both of Easton.

Toff had cuts and bruises of both knees and Aaron bruises of the right leg.

Troopers said Avia had just entered the ramp from the southbound lane of Route 402 when his car struck the highway divider as he rounded a turn. The vehicle veered across the road, plunged down a 20-foot embankment and nose-dived into the ground.

One Injured In Two-Car Accident

ONE person was injured in a two-car accident on the Stroudsburg side of the Interborough bridge at 7:30 a.m. yesterday.

Stroudsburg police said a car driven by Gerald Mosteller, 19, East Stroudsburg, struck the rear of one driven by Russell Winters, 28, of 370 Lincoln Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Mosteller was treated at Monroe County General Hospital's dispensary for a chest injury.

Police said Winters ran out of gasoline and left his car parked in the eastbound lane of the bridge.

Mosteller's car was demolished and the rear bumper, trunk and left fender of the Winters car were damaged.

367 Motorists Halted On Pike

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission reported today that 367 motorists were prevented from using the toll road over the Labor Day holiday weekend because their vehicles were in dangerous condition.

Chairman Joseph J. Lawler said another 1,342 operators were warned for driving vehicles with apparent defects. The most common faults found in safety checks at turnpike interchanges were bad tires and lights, he added.

Turnpike travelers logged 33,922,074 miles over the weekend with 44 accidents, the commission reported. There was one fatality in a collision between a car and a tractor-trailer. A total of 394,559

Bangor Borough Council To Hold Special Session

BANGOR — Plans were made to hold a special session of Bangor borough council next Monday night to start preparations for a plumbing code.

This decision was made at the regular session of the council last night when a request for such a code was received through sewer authority efforts.

Council also plans to consider the naming of a plumbing inspector in the near future. It has requested that all plumbers, citizens and members of the sewer authority attend the meeting next Monday.

Walter Warrick was instructed by council to meet with the sewer authority during its (sewer authority) Wednesday session. In an attempt to clarify assessments against property being set for installation of borough sewer line.

Petition Received

A petition of residents of S. Third St. (between Market and Broadway) was received by council. It requested that this portion of S. Third St. be made a one-way street and permit parking on both sides of the street. Council referred the request to safety committee for consideration.

In other action, two aged residents of Fourth Ward asked council for exoneration for per capita taxes. The group said that

Schools Reopen 1960-61 Year Today

ALMOST 7,000 school youngsters will trek back to school today in the local area constituting just four institutions that begin opening sessions today. Many other area schools open at a later date.

The total enrollment of these schools include Stroud Union, Pocono Mt. School Jointure, St. Matthews Parochial, and East Stroudsburg State College.

East Stroudsburg College has an estimated 1,400 student enrollment for the 1960-61 term and it is a new college record for attendance. Last season there were 1,165 collegians enrolled.

Keeps Rising

Dr. LeRoy Koehler, president of the college, and who himself has been associated with the institution for the past 38 years, stated that the increase in enrollment has been noted for the past four years. Back in 1956, he said, the college was attended by about 1,000 students.

To facilitate the increased attendance, a new women's dormitory has been constructed on the campus. The women students will now be housed at the new dormitory (no name has been selected as yet) at Stroud Hall, and at Indian Queen Hotel, in Stroudsburg.

Via Civil Service

Quick Official Assistant Chief

DONALD G. Quick, who has been acting as assistant chief of East Stroudsburg police since December, 1959, was named to the post by Borough Council at a meeting last night.

Council named Quick after receiving the report of the Police Civil Service Commission which showed that Quick had a score of 90.33 in the examination given for the post.

Patrolmen Clark J. Frailey and Charles J. McDonald ranked behind Quick. They were the only members of the department to take the examination.

Named Inspector

Council also named Harry Newman as inspector to enforce provisions of the ordinance covering replacement of damaged or inadequate water lines, sewer lines and gas lines during construction of the sanitary sewer system.

At the same time, Council moved for tighter control over the contractor on the job. At the suggestion of Council President Harold Wiggins, a motion was adopted which provides that the borough will not approve opening of another section of street for sewer work until those previously opened are closed.

Wiggins said: "I'm satisfied that Borough Council is within its rights in taking such action."

He said the contractor has failed to cooperate with the Fire Dept. and has had several stretches of streets torn up at a single time.

"There have been sections where if there had been trouble, they (the firemen) could not have got to it," Wiggins declared.

Council authorized Newman, Borough Manager Sterling Cramer and Borough Engineer Edward C. Hess to make a survey of streets which are still open and to report at an adjourned meeting at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 14.

Other Action

In other action, Council: Directed Hess to check and report back to Council on a complaint by Mrs. Evelyn A. Shiffer of Gilbert St. that water being discharged from the Redmond Finishing Co. mill on Brown St. is causing a health hazard in the vicinity of her home.

Granted a right-of-way to the Borough Authority to contract a sewer line across the East Stroudsburg Playground property.

Approved a request of Patterson-Kelley Co. to defer connecting its main plant to the sewer system.

Set trash collections for Sept. 21, 22 and 23.

Named Harold D. Larson, Sr. to the post of school patrolman. Directed Cramer to notify Edgar Panna to correct "unsightly condition" of his lots on Roller St. within 10 days, after noting numerous complaints about their condition.

Received notification of a sanitary landfill meeting to be held in the East Stroudsburg Borough Hall at 7:30 p.m. next Monday. Invitations have been sent to Stroudsburg and Delaware Water Gap Boroughs and Hamilton, Stroud, Smithfield and Middle Smithfield Townships.

Special Educational Program Set For Monroe County Schools

ELEVEN teachers now employed in the Special Education Department of the Monroe County schools met yesterday in the office of Monroe County Superintendent of schools John C. Litts and were given a preview of the program.

The program has been set up under the direction of the County School Board and will be under the direct supervision of John C. Litts, Monroe County superintendent of schools; Dr. Bennett Strait, special education supervisor; and Dr. John A. Abbruzzese Jr., Monroe County psychologist.

The program for this year has been enlarged. A new class has been added to the Day Care Training Class in the East Stroudsburg Armory. In prior years there were only two classes. Now there are three.

In the Primary Group in the East Stroudsburg Area Joint Elementary School, two classes have been added. Also added this year is a class for the "aged group" in the Junior High School of the East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools.

The other "something new" said Superintendent Litts is a class for physical handicapped. This group will meet in the rooms underneath East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium.

$88,000 Budget

The over all purpose of the program, which will operate on a budget of approximately $88,000 for 1960-61 is to care for the individual needs of the children. It will start with a tapping of their ability level and go on from a speed adapted to the individual children.

Litts said, "As you can see the work done in this program will be mostly individual in nature and will be to the individual child's advantage."

The project is set up for approximately 94 children this year. A breakdown by division shows there will be 42 children in the Day Care Training, 18 in the Primary Group, 22 in the Junior High School Group and 12 in the Physical Handicapped.

All of the figures are approximate and may increase or decrease as the school year progresses.

Jobs And Inflation

Politicians on one side of the fence are speaking proudly these days of the record number of people who are gainfully employed in this country. Opposing partisans seek to counter these claims by pointing out that unemployment, too, is running high.

Both sides cite official statistics to prove they are right, and of course they are. For one thing, our population is growing steadily and there are more people holding and seeking jobs. For another, the number of women employed in industry, business and the professions is at an all-time high.

It's obvious, therefore, that we are not standing still, either in population or employment. There is one factor, however, which has hurt us economically in the past and will continue to do so as long as it remains a threat.

The ogre in this case is inflation, an enemy which can destroy us just as surely as atomic bombs, guided missiles and saboteurs. In fact, by stirring up world tensions at every turn, Russia hopes to keep inflation a very real problem in the United States and eventually bankrupt us.

To the average wage earner, inflation is something which steals from his pay check more deftly and permanently than a pick-pocket. It builds him up for the big letdown by giving him an increase in earnings, then slyly takes away his raise through higher costs for the things he buys. People with fixed incomes do not benefit from the increase, but get socked just the same by inflation.

American wage earners have been affected adversely by the increase in foreign imports and the decline of our own exports since the end of World War Two.

Goods made and sold by cheap-labor countries are underselling our merchandise in the world markets and even finding ready sale in this country.

Each article from abroad sold in this country means less employment for the American worker, and when multiplied many times in many different fields adds up to considerable unemployment.

We all want to be paid higher wages, but when our pay level is far out of line with respect to the scales in other countries, we are only kidding ourselves when we demand further increases and more inflation.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Legislature, Go Home!

Pennsylvania's Senate is closely divided along party lines. Until the resignation of Senator Irvin J. Whalley, of Windber, the Republican majority had just the bare 26 votes required to approve legislation.

But now that Senator Whalley has deserted the ranks to run for Congress, the GOP would be powerless to act without Democratic support.

And since the Senate traditionally functions on a strictly partisan basis, that seems most improbable except in the case of gubernatorial appointments which should be confirmed.

Given those political circumstances, it seems to us that the do-nothing 1960 Legislature has more compelling reason than ever to confirm appointments and adjourn sine die the next time it meets. That can't come too soon.

—Pittsburgh Post Gazette

George Sokolsky Says . . .

An Englishman Sees Us

Usually British journalists who come to this country write about us as though we were Fiji Islanders or Congolese; in fact, they show more understanding of the Fijis.

There is so much looking down their noses that they do not see what is before them. Too often about all they see is that New Yorkers or Washingtonians are different from Londoners. There are, of course, exceptions.

Perhaps the greatest correspondent Great Britain ever sent us was Sir Willmott Lewis whose influence in both countries was enormous. And he was as knowledgeable in American affairs as any American newspaperman.

Recently Perigine Wors-

He arrived when a daily newspaper and a weekly magazine were producing some froth about our "national purpose"—an ambiguous and purposeless phrase. Of this, Worshtorne wrote:

"I cannot pretend that I actually asked any Americans about this, because to my mind the phrase is odiously reminiscent of those societies—Communist, Fascist and Caesarist—which dress up a diet of propaganda dust and ashes with a high-sounding sauce called 'the national purpose'."

Quite so. Unless the journalist wandered among the self-anointed Park Avenue intellectuals who constitute a tiny segment of American life—but a very noisy one—he would find few Americans who wondered about our national purpose. Instead he saw substantial Americans and came to this conclusion:

"Here, it seemed to me, was a society in which men and women, families and communities, are realizing the good life not in the past or future, not in slogans or statistics, not in terms of ideology and propaganda, but actually on the ground, in their flesh and blood lives here and now.

"They are so busy living that they have no time for political oratory. Having got to the heart of the package they can afford to throw away the tinsel wrapping. For them Christmas Day is over. The dazzling gifts have passed into everyday life."

This is, of course, the richness of American material life unequalled anywhere. Worshtorne captured something else: "Experts tell us that the Soviet Union is a land of promise and expanding production. Other experts tell us that America is a land of disappointment and contraction. All I can say is: 'Pity the country whose glories only experts can detect, and envy the country whose faults it takes an expert to discover.'"

This pangyric might do the British some good, for just as it used to be popular for Americans to twist the lion's tail, so, in recent years, has it been the habit of British journalists to pluck the feathers of the American eagle.

It is not usual for a British writer to capture the spirit of the American people—a spirit which is overlaid by the defeatism of certain internationalist groups in this country who, having become Russophiles, are discouraged that Russia did not prove out to be the savior of civilization. And for that they blame the United States!

Again, this writer has caught something of the richness of American family life—which is the spiritual basis of our society:

"Traveling through the Middle West by Greyhound bus I was invited by my neighbor to stop over for the night at his small suburban home. He was a traveling salesman—by our classifications distinctly lower-middle-class—who had for some months been saving up to buy a small yacht.

"The next morning he took his family and me for a sail on Lake Michigan. There was nothing 'materialistic' about the joy and spiritual release, the surge of the spirit, which sailing afforded that family. As a result of their prosperity they—and millions like them—are experiencing a new depth to life."

He concludes: "... These families were not wallowing in a pig trough. They were drinking at the fountains of their national heritage."

I could go on quoting from these articles. Suffice it that this writer captured something about this country that others have missed. He traveled about where he could meet Americans, not those who follow the seasons internationally. He ought to come again and see more of us. We need such interpreters of our ways, particularly among the British who are our partners, for better or for worse.

The Pennsylvania Story

BACK TO SCHOOL

To some these three words are hard to take, while others have been biting at the bit waiting to get back in their classrooms.

No matter what the feeling of the some 7,000 students who will enter school today and a little later on we know some enjoyment will come from their venture in education.

It wasn't too long ago—34 years to be exact—that we started on this particular road of learning. After approximately six years of loafing around the law required boys and girls of our age to start an education.

What a blow it was. After all we had the run of the land the first half dozen years of our life and now we were to be part of a scope that was built around regimentation and discipline.

If I remember correctly our first teacher was a woman who was more than dedicated to her vocation. In fact she leaned over backwards to make sure to let us know she was boss.

Our first day of school we more or less reconnoitered the area. Now what did this lady who like Teddy Roosevelt carried a big stick want of us?

It didn't take long to find out. No talking, sit straight in your seat and learn to read and write, were her chief requisites. This was a little rough to take after having a free hand so long.

Well we took it that year and kept coming back for more—12 years and plus three and a half more in fact.

Like all normal beings—that's what the instructors like to say—we had our ups and downs. Once in a while we beat the law of averages and bolted into the honor group. However, this was more the oddity than the regularity.

At times we questioned the good in education. We knew our capacity wasn't near the genius stage yet we felt we were not a borderline numb-skull case. The educators solved the problem with their up and down lones and labeled us an average pupil and then student. That was good enough. We didn't care to be on short or long end of the norm lines.

But it was a great 15 and one half years. Many persons have said it had the chance over again their school years would be different. To this we say nay. If we had the opportunity to turn back the clock and start again in 1926 we wouldn't do a thing different.

Those were glorious years and we would have felt lacking if we didn't control ourselves in the so-called "normal" way.

There is no reason why the youngsters and youth starting or continuing their education today shouldn't feel the same way 15 or less years from now.

Off The Record

Harrisburg — Pennsylvania's

Industrial economy unquestionably will become a harping point for both Republicans and Democrats of the Keystone State during the forthcoming campaign.

Although a subject common to both parties, the rangy and quite moot point will be attacked from opposing angles.

Fundamentally the debate, if it can be called that, is expected to simmer around the two facets of: (1) unemployment, (2) industrial activity.

On the unemployment front, six years ago Democrats at the peak of their successful 1954 gubernatorial campaign hammered mercilessly on a growing unemployment upswing in the Keystone State under the preceding Republican Fine Administration.

The promise was made repeatedly that the condition would be corrected speedily by Democrats if elected to office.

The fact sheet shows, using statistics of the Administration-controlled Department of Labor and Industry, that unemployment in Pennsylvania actually has decreased.

The debatable point of the upcoming campaign is whether this can be attributed to the Democratic Leader and Lawrence administrations—or improved conditions generally throughout the country.

Democrats insist on the former point. Republicans cling to the latter.

There is this much certainly not noting: the two Democratic administrations that have been in office in Pennsylvania during the past six years have been nipped and tucked and plagued by deadlocked legislatures—the Senate in every session in control of anti-administration Republicans, with the result that administration forces have been in position to do little more than keep their bobbing heads above water.

Republicans on the other hand are insisting and will insist throughout the campaign that any brightening of the employment picture in the Keystone State has resulted not from Democratic administration activity, but rather as the unavoidable after-effects of a current economic high level under the Republican Eisenhower Administration.

One thing is certain: in the hard core unemployment areas of the state where jobs are still being sought—the claims of both will have a distinctly hollow ring.

The second point—industrial activity—is perhaps equally as touchy.

Claims have been vocal in recent years over the success of Democratic Administrations in bringing new industry into Pennsylvania.

Administration claims of course are based on the results of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) program in providing financial assistance to local communities in developing new area industries.

The program was initiated and developed by the Democratic Leader Administration—of this there can be no dispute. The legislative record on this point speaks for itself.

And—that the program has been productive and most certainly has helped bring in new industries to the Keystone State also can hardly be disputed. Again the statistics speak for themselves: more than 100 new industries and 24,500 new jobs.

In all of this there are of course anti-administration claims that much of this increased industrial activity would have resulted without the PIDA program. Would it or wouldn't it? Could the same end have been accomplished with less expenditure in four years more than $16 million committed?

It's another moot point. Unquestionably the industrial-unemployment show this fall should be "interesting."

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Sept. 20 and Nov. 1 are dates circled in red on the calendar of Secretary of State Herter.

He believes that Russia is planning to spring its new West Berlin crisis on either one of those dates.

That's the report that Secretary Herter made in a special White House foreign policy briefing last week. In an unannounced meeting with President Eisenhower and his cabinet, Herter revealed that diplomatic reports from Moscow are forecasting that Soviet Premier Khrushchev plan to force a pre-election showdown over West Berlin.

He reported that U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson is warning that a new crisis could come this month if West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer goes through with plans to have the Bundestag meet in West Berlin on Sept. 20.

Herter told the cabinet that Khrushchev bluntly informed Thompson in a private talk that Russia wouldn't stand for a meeting of West German lawmakers in West Berlin, and that the Soviet leader threatened military action to prevent it. Thompson reported that Khrushchev didn't appear to be bluffing.

Questioned about the policy that the U.S. should follow, Herter said he was recommending full U.S. backing of Adenauer.

He argued that cancellation of the West Berlin meeting now would be interpreted as a sign of weakness by the West.

Herter pointed out that Thompson's report stressed that Berlin is still the weapon Khrushchev is holding in reserve to try to wring new cold war concessions from the West.

"If we just once show a sign of weakening," said Herter, "Khrushchev will move to cut West Berlin off from West Germany and force us out."

Holding A Baby

By Herman N. Bundesen, M. D. Almost every young girl old enough to stay home by herself serves as a baby sitter once in a while.

But simply being old enough doesn't qualify anyone for the job. A baby sitter should at least know a few essentials—how to hold a baby, for example.

So today I would like to pass along some simple suggestions that I think will help a sitter do a better and safer job.

For one thing, there is a right way to pick up a baby. A small baby can be injured by lifting if you don't support his back and neck properly.

The Right Way When picking up a baby, place your left hand under his head and support the neck and back with the left forearm. The right hand supports the baby's lower back and buttocks and the right forearm serves as a cradle for the legs.

Use a firm grasp. Babies are instinctively afraid of falling; and they don't like to be gripped too gently.

Be sure to hold onto the railing when carrying the baby up or down the stairs. This means you must hold the baby so that your forearm supports his head and back and your hand grips his legs.

For an older baby, this back support isn't quite so essential. A firm grip on the youngster, however, is even more important because the older a child gets, the more he wiggles and squirms.

Older Baby For an older baby, I suggest that you hold him facing you. Put your right forearm under his right thigh. Support his back with your left hand. For an even bigger baby, let him sit on your forearm and sort of straddle you.

Unless the baby is asleep, never leave him out of your sight. If he is sleeping, it's a good idea to check up on him every hour at least.

If you are coming down with a cold or don't feel up to par, don't offer to serve as a sitter. Make sure that you know where to reach the parents, the family doctor and a neighbor in case of an emergency.

The National Baby Care Council recently published a baby-sitting guide which I think most sitters would find extremely helpful. It's part of their nationwide program to teach teenagers the skills of baby-sitting.

Question And Answer Mrs. E. R. S.: What causes brown spots on the face of a 34-year-old woman?

Is there a way to bleach them?

Answer: These disturbances in pigment may be associated with some internal condition, but in most cases the cause is unknown.

A skin specialist may be able to bleach them, but I know of no home remedy for this purpose.

From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton

The four and eight cent "Champion of Liberty" set honoring Ignace Jan Paderewski, will have first day sale at Washington, D.C., Oct. 8.

Paderewski, considered by many to have been the world's greatest pianist, turned his efforts toward raising relief funds for Polish refugees, when the first World War broke out in 1914.

When factions met in Pittsburgh in 1917, Paderewski was asked to lead the movement both here and abroad. He represented the newly created Poland at the signing of the Versailles Treaty, and became the first prime minister of Poland, and its president, holding this office for ten months.

When Germany invaded Poland in 1939, Paderewski became president of the Polish Government-in-Exile. In 1940 he came to the United States to live. He died here in 1941 and was buried at Arlington National Cemetery.

The likeness of Paderewski, used on these stamps, was taken from a painting by Tave Styka, based on a photograph by Taylor and Dull.

The four-cent value of this set will be printed in blue and issued to the post offices in panes of 70 stamps. The eight-cent value will be printed in red, blue and other and issued in panes of 72 stamps.

The four cent stamp with the theme "Wheels of Freedom" will have first day sale at Detroit, Mich. Oct. 15 in conjunction with the National Automotive Show. The design by the New York artist, Arnold J. Copeland, will be printed in blue and feature superimposed upon a background of the world, three illustrations centered in a symbolic steering wheel of a passenger car, a tractor and a truck.

The Monroe County Club will resume its regular meetings, Wednesday, Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. at 36 Club Court, Stroudsburg. The club meets the first and third Wednesdays of each month except during the summer months. All collectors are welcome and invited to attend.

CUTIES

Q. Why doesn't Congress remove the "retirement test" from the social security law and pay everybody social security at age 65, whether or not they continue to work?

A. Payment of full benefits to all of the aged who are still working would be very costly, both in the immediate future and in the long run. Benefit costs in 1959 would have been increased by 2 billion dollars if the retirement test had not been in effect for that year. Most people do not retire at age 65 and social security tax rates take that into account. The average age of retirement is between 68 and 69. If social security were paid to people at age 65, whether or not they retired, social security taxes would have to be increased.

Q. Who would benefit if the retirement test were removed?

A. Roughly, only about 18 percent of the 11.1 million people aged 65 or over who are receiving benefits or are eligible to receive them.

Fingerlings Stocked At Tobyhanna

MORE than 7500 large mouth bass fingerlings were stocked in Tobyhanna State Park Lake recently, area Fish Warden James Hazen announced yesterday.

The stocking was under the supervision of Hazen and deputy fish warden, Gene Guida Jr., Canadensis.

The fingerlings were raised at the Fish Hatcheries, Pleasant Mount.

Legal In 3 years

The fish stocked at Tobyhanna are expected to be of legal size in three years.

Hazen said that further stockings of area lakes and streams are planned in the near future.

Ex-AEC Member Asks Ban Lift

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former member of the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday urged the incoming president of the United States to lift the ban on testing of underground nuclear weapons as one of his first acts.

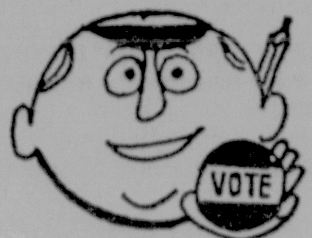

In an open letter to Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, Thomas E. Murray argued that it must be presumed the Russians have been conducting such tests secretly, despite the ban.

Because of this, he wrote: "We have, in effect, 'disarmed' ourselves, while leaving Russia to go on arming. We have, in effect, brought into being a state of affairs that is advantageous to Russia, not to ourselves."

Gelinas' Back In West Africa

Jack Gelinas

LAGOS, Nigeria—Jumbo prepares very good meals, and Josiah and Abel, in addition to their many other chores (all directed at making our stay here in the company's guest house pleasant) can launder and iron anything from a white shirt to a pleated skirt as skillfully as any Chinaman.

So, although we can't really feel "settled-in" as yet, a few weeks here at the guest house is pleasant; and although our personal effects (except for what we brought with us) are still in storage at the Apapa Warehouse, living out of a suitcase isn't too bad.

We were more than pleased to learn on arrival, that the family that has been living in the house we formerly occupied during our last tour is soon to move. And, we'll be moving back to our home at No. 10 Ilabere Avenue in another week or so.

Probably the happiest person to see us back was Stephen Ogila. Stephen had served us as steward (number one house-boy) from the day we first came

Dear Abby

Gram Can Learn

Dear Abby: This problem has my whole family all shook up. My grandmother is 64. She has been a widow for six years. She has a beau who is about 75 and they are talking about marriage. He is polite and nice but he doesn't have any money to brag about. Gram owns her own home and has some other property around town. My parents have been trying to talk Gram out of going with this man. They tell her to her face she is acting like an old fool and things like that. This makes Gram sad and she cries. Do you think it's any of my parents' business to tell Gram how to run her life? They say she doesn't know the score.

He was our cook.

Good Cooks
We learned from Alphonsus that he has been cooking for a family over in Apapa, but that he would like to come back with us. Not wishing to cause any hard feelings with his present employers, we could only tell him that we'd look into the possibility and let him know.

I'll say one thing — he gives even Jumbo strong competition when it comes to cooking (and Jumbo is considered to be about the best anyone could hope to find), and when it comes to baking, I think Alphonsus's deep-dish apple pie might win the prize.

We drove to Ilabere Avenue a few days after we arrived, and Amos, the company gardener, who has been assigned at No. 10 since the ranch-style house was first completed a year ago last February, came running to greet us.

He was embarrassed at the dryness of the grass. It was almost as though he accepted the comparatively small rains (for this time of year) as something personal, but he was sure that Oshun, God of the Rivers, would see to it that it rained before we moved in. Barbara admired his zinnias and he seemed glad that we were back.

Undergoing Changes
Lagos is undergoing great changes — more modern street lights on more widened streets; more new buildings completed, and others promising completion by the magic date, Oct. 1, when all of Nigeria and her 36,000,000 people will receive the long awaited independence their fathers couldn't even have dreamed of, only a few short decades ago; old buildings taking on new character with new paint; and the people — building, rebuilding, toiling, cleaning, fixing, straightening, decorating, trimming, accomplishing, doing — with a new purpose, a new thought.

But in talking to people like Stephen and Josiah; or Jumbo and Alphonsus, or Abel, or Amos, it is enough to confirm what I have believed for a long time — and that is that people don't really change, only opportunities and places do.

money is to ask him to sign an agreement before marriage stating "What's his is, and what's hers is hers?"

Dear Abby: I entertained at a little tea for a friend who is moving. One of my guests (a neighbor) brought me a pound of coffee, gift-wrapped, and said, privately, "I'm here so much."

I told her I couldn't accept the coffee. I meant to give it back to her when she left but it slipped my mind. I am hurt and want to return it. Would it be wrong to mail it back to her with a little note saying it wasn't necessary?

HURT HOSTESS
Dear Hurt: Keep the coffee and forget it. Mailing it back would only furnish grounds for a misunderstanding.

Dear Abby: I gave up my child for adoption nine years ago. I knew when I signed her away it would be a final decision but I can't stop trying to find out where she is. I am married now and have three other children but I still long for my first born. My mother tells me I should leave well enough alone and forget her, but how can I forget her, Abby? Please help me.

Pottsville Boy, 4, Dies Of Polio

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Michael J. Shamonsky, 4, of nearby New Philadelphia, died Tuesday of polio. The city health department said it was the first polio death this year in the area. It was not known whether the child had received anti-polio vaccine.

SAD HEARTED MOTHER

Dear Sad: Your searching would probably be in vain, and if you did locate the child it would be unfair to her and to her adoptive parents after nine years. When a mother loses a child by death, she leaves the child in God's care. The mother who gives up her child for adoption must have the same kind of faith.

Dear Abby: I am sure that every girl at some time or other gets honked at. My question is, what is a girl supposed to do? Don't tell me not to turn around because a girl has to look at who is honking so she can find out if she knows them or not. If she doesn't know them, should she smile pleasantly and keep walking? Or should she turn up her nose and give them the cold shoulder?

Dear Honked: Only a goose honks . . . and unless you are a green gosling you will not encourage a honker with a "pleasant smile."

Dear Abby: Please tell "Love Threatened" her suspicions are correct. My husband IS seeing me for other than business reasons. Who has a better right? Not all separations end in divorce. Some couples achieve a richer and happier relationship than ever before. With God's help, we shall.

Johnson Wins Olympic Decathlon From Yang By 58 Points

Davis, Elliott Set World Marks In 400 Meters And Mile Event

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
ROME (AP)—Powerful Rafer Johnson gave the United States its sixth straight Olympic decathlon title Tuesday after Otis Davis of Los Angeles and Herb Elliott of Australia had broken world records in two other blue ribbon events.

Johnson beat off the challenge of Formosa's C.K. Yang, a close friend, in a tense finish of the 10-event competition stretched over two strenuous days.

Big Rafer had a 58-point edge in the official point standings with 8,392 points to Yang's 8,334. The Russian Vasily Kuznetsov was third, with 7,809.

Home Run Hitting Offense Featured By Cavaliers

EAST Stroudsburg High School has the home run hitters and the home run plays and if it can strengthen its defense, will be a strong contender for Lehigh-Northampton League grid honors.

And in an effort to spend more time on defense, coach Jack Kist will swing to two-a-day workouts starting Monday.

"We watched movies of our scrimmage with Emmaus tonight," said Kist "and I was not satisfied with our tackling. We have to spend more time on fundamentals."

The Cavaliers have held two outside scrimmages and unofficially tied Easton 3-3 (in touchdowns) and romped a much heavier Emmaus squad 7-0.

The Cavaliers flashed their homerun power (long run or pass) against the Green Hornets.

Myers Gets Three

Halfback Harold Myers accounted for three off the East Stroudsburg tallies, running 60, 45 and 80 yards. His halfback running mate Brian Farris added another on a 65 yard run and quarterback Jack Fellman passed for a 35-yard score.

Both Farris and Myers have the speed to break loose on any player. The pair was clocked at 10.9 seconds for the 100-yard dash in a school track meet last Spring.

Farris, who weighs only 155-pounds doesn't have the weight to break away once he is trapped but still gets the job done.

Myers, who is 6-0 and weighs 180, has a long stride, which presents a small target for tacklers.

Dropped Passes

The East Stroudsburg pass defense and tackling were weak in the Emmaus workout.

Three Hornet receivers dropped touchdown passes without a defender around and the sweep plays worked effectively.

Kist is not too worried about the pass defense. "We didn't spend much time working on it," he explained and won't really push pass defense until the week of our first game."

But Kist is worried about the tackling situation. "The players just aren't hitting the runners," he said. "We worked half an hour on tackling tonight and will spend a great deal of time on it during future practices."

The Cavaliers will have an unusual starting backfield combination—four runners and three passers. Both Myers and Farris can throw the halfback pass and Fellman is a good runner, who likes to keep the ball on roll-outs.

The fourth-member of the backfield will probably be Dave Harmon. Fellman is the only senior in the backfield. The other three are juniors.

Kist plans one major change in his line but it will be a defensive one. Vince Patella worked at a line-backer slot last night and if Kist can find a replacement for Patella's tackle berth, the change will be permanent. Patella will work offensively as a tackle.

"Vince is our strongest defense player," says Kist. "He can move and is a good tackler. As a line-backer, he will have a chance to move around and make more tackles."

Slow Line

Up front, the Cavaliers are big but slow. Bud Stann, a 5-11, 250-pound tackle, could be the key to the line.

Earl Metzger is the leading guard candidate. Mike Boushell, Kirk Nieson and United States at Melbourne in 1956—when Johnson finished second.

Davis won the 400 meters in 44.9 seconds despite a heroic lunge by fast-closing Carl Kaufmann of Germany. The old world record was 45.2 seconds set by Lou Jones of Manhattan in 1956.

Elliott won the 1,500 meters going away in 3:35.6—equal to running the mile close to or under 3:53.

In breaking the 45-second barrier for the first time, Davis and Kaufmann—who was given exactly the same official time as the American—eclipsed both the world mark and the Olympic record of 45.5 set by Davis himself in an early heat.

Elliott held the recognized world record for 1,500 meters at 3:36. On the Olympic record list he displaced Ron Delany's mark of 3:41.2 set by the Irishman in 1956.

Three gold medals Tuesday night in freestyle wrestling by a trio of Oklahoma athletes and Johnson's victory in the decathlon helped put the United States in front of Russia in gold medals with a total of 26.

The American wrestling champions were Shelby Wilson, a 23-year-old lightweight, and Doug Blubaugh, a 25-year-old welter, both from Ponca City, Okla., and bantamweight Terry McCann, 26-year-old Tulsa bookkeeper.

The unofficial point standings after the day's competition stood: Russia 44½, United States 417½.

Switched Sports

Davis, a 28-year-old native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., went to the University of Oregon as a basketball player, switched to track in 1958 as a sprinter and only started running the 400 meters last year.

South Africa's Mal Spence set the early pace, but Davis came charging around the last curve into clear leadership as the field hit the straightaway. Then stride by stride Kaufmann closed the gap as Davis, near exhaustion, started leaning back.

Kaufmann lunged at the tape and fell sprawling on the track. Davis won by no more than inches.

First the world record was announced. Then Davis was proclaimed the winner. He kicked off his shoes and jumped up and down in glee.

Sprints On Signal

The 1,500 was another kind of story. Michel Bernard of France set all the early pace with Elliott holding a comfortable fourth place. On the back stretch of the last lap Elliott cut loose, when by a pre-arranged signal he saw his coach, Percy Cerutti, waving a white shirt.

Sixth place in the brilliant field went to Dyrrol Burleson of Cottage Grove, Ore., who was clocked in 3:40.9, the best time he has ever done and the equivalent of running the mile slightly under four minutes. Jim Grelle of Portland, Ore., finished eighth in the nine-man field in 3:45.0.

It was a record breaking day. Even before the hop, step and jump was finished, Josef Schmidt of Poland twice bettered the recognized world record of 54-feet-9½ held by Russia's Oleg Fedoseev.

First he did 55½ and then 55-1½. However, he has a mark of 55-10½ up for recognition.

Schmidt took over the Olympic record of 53-11½ held by Ademar Ferreira da Silva of Brazil.

Schmidt's big leap brought him the gold medal. Second was Vladimir Gorlaev of Russia with 54-6½. On his last leap Viktor Kreer of Russia edged Ira Davis of Philadelphia out of the third place bronze medal. Kreer did 53-10½ and Davis 53-10.

In discus qualifying trials, Al Oerter of West Babylon, N.Y., broke his own Olympic record of 184 feet 10½ with a toss of 191½. Rink Babka of Manhattan Beach, Calif., with 178-8½, and Richard Cochrane of Brookfield, Mo., 176-5½, join Oerter in the finals Wednesday.

Alexy Gushchin of Russia won the free pistol event with a score of 560. Vladimir Rubash of Russia took the featherweight free style wrestling bronze medal, and Hasan Gundur of Turkey won the middleweight freestyle wrestling crown.

Pirates Battle Back For 5-3 Win Over Milwaukee

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, battling from behind, scored three runs in the eighth inning Tuesday night and whipped the Milwaukee Braves 5-3.

The victory increased the Pirates' National League lead to seven games and dropped the Braves into third place, a half-game back of the idle St. Louis Cardinals.

Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's ace southpaw, came on in relief of Braves' starter Lou Burdette in the eighth to try to protect the Braves 3-2 lead.

But Spahn gave up back-to-back doubles to Dick Stuart and Roberto Clemente that tied the score and a single to Smokey Burgess that gave the Pirates a 4-3 lead.

CLOSE FINISH IN 400-METER RUN—Otis Davis, left, of Los Angeles hits tape ahead of Germany's Carl Kaufmann to win the 400-meter run at the Olympics in Rome. Visible in rear are Mal Spence (dark uniform) of South Africa who finished third and India's Milkha Singh who came in fourth. Davis' time was 44.9 seconds. (AP Wirephoto by radio from Rome)

Pro Court Sport Not So Pure

CONGRESSIONAL investigators, who have been trying to pin an "anti-trust" suit on major league baseball for the past several years, should take a look at the National Basketball Assn.

The NBA and its president, Maurice Podoloff, has refused to honor former Kentucky All-American Bill Spivey's contract with the Cincinnati Royals.

Podoloff claims that Spivey "does not qualify to play in the league." The not-qualified bit presumably stems from the point-shaving trial of Spivey in 1953.

Spivey's trial resulted in a hung jury and several lie detector tests indicated Spivey had no connection with the "fixed" games. Spivey has not been found guilty on any count involving the baseball scandals; yet he is banned from the NBA. On the other hand, major league baseball, which has been tabbed as monopolistic, allows Jim Rivera, who once served a prison term to play.

Few Changes For Schoolboy Grid Rules

High school football rules have been changed only slightly for the coming season.

It is now mandatory that all players wear face guards and the fair catch signal has been changed for an arm wave above the head to a fully extended arm, with no waving necessary.

And blocking from the rear or "legalized clipping" will be allowed in an area four yards on either side of the ball at the center snap and two yards behind each team's scrimmage line.

And to take advantage of the rule, the blocker who intends to throw the legal clip, must be in the eight by four yard rectangle, when the ball is snapped.

Ineligible pass receivers will also be allowed to move down field as soon as the last forward pass has been thrown.

McMahon At Cousy's Basketball Camp

Mike McMahon, who was a starter for the Stroud Union hoop squad last year, is attending Bob Cousy's Basketball Camp in New Hampshire.

And Ray Uhl, who was voted East Stroudsburg High School "all-around athlete" in 1960, has turned down a football scholarship at Muhlenberg and will enter East Stroudsburg State College on Thursday.

Uhl has been working out with the Warrior football team and is given a good chance of sticking with the club.

Monticello Raceway, first to introduce day-night racing in New York State, is toying with the idea of another "first."

The bonanza pool, popularly known as "Pick-Six" may be headed for Monticello next year.

Selections On Last Six Races

Under the bonanza setup, bettors select what they think are the winner of the last six races. Only one selection is permitted in each race. The selections are punched out at the windows and returned to the patrons.

Patrons selecting the most winners, will share in the Big Bonanza, which is 70 per cent of the total pool. A Little Bonanza is paid to those picking the next lowest numbers.

In the three other U. S. Track using the "Pick-Six" pots of $2,000 have been paid out.

KO Gibbon

Consecutive singles by Bill Bruton, Del Crandall and Eddie Mathews scored a run, knocked Gibbon out of the box and brought on Labine. Hank Aaron and Alvin Dark then swatted singles that gave Milwaukee a 3-2 lead before the side was retired.

Pirate shortstop Dick Groat was hit on the left wrist by a Burdette pitch in the first inning and finally left the game in the third when his wrist began swelling. The Pirates said a late examination showed a fracture. He will be lost four weeks.

Dick Schofield, subbing for Groat, swatted three singles and went far to his right to start a fine double play in the sixth.

Liston Faces Machen On Coast Today

SEATTLE (AP)—Sonny Liston of Philadelphia and Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore., the two top contenders for Floyd Patterson's world heavyweight title, clash Wednesday night in a 12-round outdoor bout.

Both fighters knocked off training and basked in the sunshine which replaced the cloudy, rainy days of their pre-fight training. The sun also prompted the promoters' prediction of the 10,000 attendance and a possible $100,000 gate.

The second-ranked Machen is expected to have a good chance if he can carry Liston's early thunder and force the bout to the limit. Liston has not been secretive about his plans for an early knockout.

The scrap will be held in Sicks' Seattle Stadium.

Drysdale Blanks Giants

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Don Drysdale won his seventh straight at the Coliseum—the park he said he couldn't pitch in—by throwing a six-hitter Tuesday as Los Angeles shut out San Francisco 7-0.

Norm Larker slammed a two-run homer for the Dodgers, Gil Hodges hit a three-run double and Drysdale himself drove in two runs with a triple.

Fans Eight

Drysdale fanned eight and ran his league leading strikeout total to 215 as he evened his record at 12-13. He hasn't lost a game at the Coliseum since June 9 — which was about the time he declared the oddly shaped park was almost impossible to work in. Since then he has pitched four shutouts here.

The Dodgers got to loser Georges Maranda for five runs in the third but only two were earned.

Final Monroe Game Tonight

TOBYHANNA and Olympic Keiper wind-up the Monroe County Softball league tonight at Stroudsburg Playground at 6.

Last night's game between Tobyhanna and Three-Ring-Pete was forfeited to the Soldiers when Three-Ring failed to field a team.

If O-K wins tonight, it will put Tobyhanna and Three-Ring in a tie for second place. A playoff game would then be played Thursday.

Lackawanna Hotel has already won the loop title with a 19-6 mark.

Boston Slams New York 7-1: Williams Belts Home Run

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams blasted a two-run homer and Billy Muffett pitched a three-hitter Tuesday as Boston's lowly Red Sox humbled the New York Yankees 7-1 to drop them a game and a half behind idle Baltimore's league-leading Orioles.

Muffett, brought up by the Red Sox in mid-season, lost his bid for a shutout with two out in the ninth inning when Mickey Mantle walloped a home run deep into the centerfield bleachers.

Limits Batters

The right-hander had permitted only two singles up to that point — to Bobby Richardson in the third inning and to Cletus Boyer in the fifth. He walked two and struck out three as he posted his fifth victory against two defeats.

Williams' blast came in the fifth inning and climaxed a three-run outburst against starter and loser Eli Grba.

Reds Rout Phils 6-1 In Ten

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Five singles in the 10th inning plus an error gave the Cincinnati Reds five runs Tuesday night and a 6-1 National League victory over last-place Philadelphia.

The muf of third baseman Ted Lepcio spoiled a potential inning double play before any runs had scored.

The Reds' other run, in the first, also came about because of an error, this time a bad throw by Pancho Herrera. Two walks then filled the bases and Vada Pinson scored on a triple steal.

Philadelphia scored in the fifth. Johnny Callison tripled to 36-inches in right-handers John Buzhardt, the starting pitcher who lost his ninth straight game.

Trio Who Tried Photo Bribe On Umps Held For Jury

ODENTON, Md. (AP)—American League umpire Ed Runge told a magistrate's court Tuesday a rendezvous with two women at a suburban Washington motel led to an attempted extortion against him and fellow umpire Bill McKinley.

Runge testified at a hearing before Magistrate J. Nelson Clark in a small courtroom that was crowded for the brief session.

Clark ordered two men and one of the women held for grand jury action. McKinley did not testify.

Ordered held on charges of attempting to extort $2,000 from the umpires were Donald E. Anderson, 32, and Robert O. Waldron, 30, both of Washington.

Mary Jane Spencer, a dancer from Washington, was bound over for grand jury action on a charge of aiding in the extortion plot. The second woman, Helen I. Ela, 24, also of Washington, was held as a material witness for the state.

Runge, 42, from San Diego, Calif., said a picture taken of the two women and a woman in a motel room was used in the blackmail try.

He said they had been in the motel room "no time at all, five to 10 minutes" when two women identified as Waldron and Anderson "broke in and took a picture" on Aug. 28.

Brick Veneer Is Easy To Keep Nice Year Around

BRICK veneer gives an exterior that is easy to maintain and attractive in appearance the whole year through. The floor plan here is somewhat different than the usual run, however, careful study reveals its many advantages.

The vestibule prevents direct intrusion into the living room, and features a guest closet. The long living room has ample windows for good day lighting, and affords good furniture arrangement. You could group your furniture in such a way to accentuate the fireplace here, which is well located.

There is a sliding door to the bedroom located off the living room. Actually this room would be perfect as a den—providing the ultimate in privacy. Of course, if three bedrooms is a must, this room is adaptable.

The two bedrooms to the side of the house afford privacy, having ample closets and high placed windows for furniture grouping. Note, the built-in chest in the rear bedroom which is an added attraction.

Kitchen-Dinette
Notice particularly the kitchen-dinette arrangement. The "U" shaped work area is a triumph in modern planning—starting with the waist high built-in oven near the door and completing the "U" with the built-in range near entrance-way to dinette.

Another fine feature here is the dovetail trellis 24 inches in height above the range. Cabinets above the trellis provide handy storage space for supplies. This treatment gives you "all-in-one" spaciousness with divided area function.

Lavatory location off the kitchen landing is a convenient one, doubly welcome when you have children.

Laundry and heating facilities are located in the basement.

This plan conforms to FHA, VA, and building code requirements. The plan contains 1,344 sq. ft. and 26,789 cu. ft. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List, and Specification Guide for Des. No. H-465 may be purchased for $9.75 for 1st set; 2 for $18.25; 3 for $26.25; or 4 for $33.75. Walk-In Cedar Room Can Be Built

IMAGINE the luxury of walking into a cedar room that's big enough to hold all your out of season clothing, blankets, sweaters, and just about everything else you could like to stow away in a dust proof, moth-resistant place. You can help yourself to this happy idea by building a cedar room right in your own attic or basement.

When a hundred families were recently asked what single item they needed for their home the majority specified "more closets." A "big cedar closet" was second. When questioned as to where additional closet space could be built into their present home, the attic came first, space under the stairs second and the basement third.

Not Difficult
Building a walk-in cedar room is neither difficult, nor need it be costly. A simplified pattern method has been developed that takes all the mystery out of the job. If your attic is like any other it offers good useable space. As the floor plan indicates, the cedar room can be built to what ever size space permits. The room illustrated measures 10 ft. wide by 8 ft. deep. It provides more than ample storage space for a family of six. Only part of one end of the attic was used in order not to interfere with a ventilating tower.

Cedar manufactured especially for this purpose is now readily available. When installed according to the step-by-step directions offered in the pattern "amateurs make like a pro." Send 50¢ in coin, check or money order for Cedar Room, Pattern No. 265, to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y. Do-It-Yourself Device Ideal

AN IDEAL starter for charcoal fires can be made from a small piece (8 or 10 inches high) of stovepipe available from hardware dealers.

Drill a series of holes three inches from the bottom of the pipe, and attach a handle made of wire to the top.

To start the fire, place the stovepipe bottom end down in the grill. Drop a few bits of crumpled newspaper in, and pour the charcoal on top of the newspaper. Light the paper through one of the holes. The pipe forms a chimney that creates an updraft. When the charcoal is burning well, take the chimney away and let the fuel burn down to glowing coals.

Scribing Large Circles

A STRIP of 1/4" mesh wire cloth may be used as a compass for scribing large circles. Rough edges should be covered with masking tape and a square at each end also should be taped off. A nail in one end will act as pivot and a pencil held in the other end will scribe the circle.

HOME OWNERS QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Can you tell me how to repair a concrete floor?

ANSWER: That's almost like asking how to repair an auto. It depends on what's wrong with it. I can only assume you are talking about patching the concrete, in which case you should get a bag of pre-mixed concrete, to which only water need be added. Follow the directions on the bag to make the necessary patches. But before you buy anything, you'd better tell your dealer exactly what is wrong with the floor and then take his advice on how to repair it.

Question: I have been reading up on varnishing, as I intend to do quite a bit of varnishing in the next few months. One of the articles refers to "tipping" after applying the first coat, but does not explain how it is done. Can you help me?

Answer: In a good varnishing job, the liquid generally is applied by brushing from the edges to the center, across the grain. This is quickly followed by what is called "tipping." This consists of a sort of smoothing operation with a nearly dry brush. The brush just barely touches the varnish coat. And the "tipping" is done with the grain, not across the grain.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

For Wed., Sept. 7, 1960
 March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mars' excellent configuration augurs your sturdy endeavor. And he sure is in right direction for your present matters, work. Scattering energies tempt, can defeat judicious purposes.
 April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Also favorable Venus vibrations, but you will have to be in line on accounts, defend principles staunchly, and like the lion, Africa and others today. NOT scatter efforts.
 May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — When pressed for time, TAKE TIME to sit a few minutes (or lie down), merely to think, reflect calmly. Ascertain if you are heading pell-mell into needless hazards, wasting assets.
 June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some fine indications, some danger signals, too. Don't compromise with ill will or wrong tactics, even if results would seem to come out all right. HOW you go about things important.
 July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Competition is good for everyone's incentive, but some take it as a sign to dash forth in whatever road is a first attraction. Watch possible values; seek new perception, facts.
 August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Numerous advantages offered. Stay with the worthy, and accept negotiations as they come. Work can be relieved with tranquil relaxing, but always first things first.
 September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may find a bumpy road in part, yet many benefits for the taking. Too quick action! Penetrate the maze of suggestions and data for truths, with which you work.
 October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Some discussion and struggles for the up-and-down. Returns are important, but not as much as the work to achieve them. This is what makes strength, healthy resolve.
 November 24 to December 31 (Sagittarius) — Up and down, and a goodly measure of better gains for you who daily not at beginning, who keep a constant but not purposeful pace. Revenge is OUT; aid, cheer DO count.
 December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Capitalize on your assets, they are many. But never over-privileges or disregard others as you climb upward in your capable self-determined manner.
 January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Your assets, especially planet Uranus, favor astute, choice gains, added power. Present your wares and personalities in form. Originality will attain.
 February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Possible to accomplish something new, different. If you grasp opportunity promptly, yet also regard necessary, you will do much good. YOU BORN TODAY: Virgo is practical, yet here and there extremes of decision and action appear. Roundly talented, able in everyday matters, or can join new undertakings with ease. Your extremes may take form of overreactivity, unwise ruling, out occasional chance-taking which aims at definite improvement. System gains much for you; your curiosity controlled can achieve the unusual. Be the assisting organ, not the critic. Can be influential if you curb overbearing tendencies and share honors not condescendingly bestow them. Your variety of abilities in demand. Birthdate of Elizabeth, Queen of England from 1558-1603.

Black Fish Baffles Experts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A small black fish with a beard-like shape is baffling Iran's marine experts and the navy has been called out to combat it.

The so far unnamed fish—five inches long with a poison shaped like a beard—is blamed for the deaths of 28 persons in the Shatt Al Arab River on the western border, Iranian newspapers said Monday.

A father whose son rushed from the river with the fish clinging to his leg said the child flushed red then turned black and died within minutes, the newspaper reported.

One newspaper said the fish plague may have been touched off by animal carcasses thrown into the river after an outbreak of a horse disease.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a magical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Winners Of The

Monroe County 4-H Roundup Of Home Economics Clubs

ONE HUNDRED twenty-five 4-H Club members, leaders and parents gathered at the Stroudsburg YMCA for the 4-H Home Economics Clubs Roundup recently. Completion certificates were awarded to 90 girls for projects completed in clothing construction, outdoor cookery, tasty snacks, and It's Fun to Bake projects. Nine local leaders judged the work of the girls.

The clothing projects completed by the girls in Mountainhome, Canadensis, Tannersville, Bartonville, Cherry Valley, Kunkletown, and Saylorsburg were judged by Mrs. Donald Hartman from Bartonville, Mrs. John Ruchman of the Tannersville Club, Mrs. Paul Reiser, from Mountainhome, Mrs. Fred Kjar from Neola, Mrs. Walter Weber of Clearview, and Mrs. Weldon Everett of Kunkletown.

Mrs. Gilbert Gravatt was the judge for the project "It's Fun to Bake," and carried by the Saylorsburg girls. The Neola "Outdoor Cookery" exhibit was judged by Mrs. Norman Dennis. The Tasty Snacks prepared by the Clearview girls was judged by Mrs. Grant Knowles.

In addition to the projects exhibited each club entered a competition for the best Scrap Book, judged by Mrs. Hartman and Mrs. Knowles.

Other leaders assisting in the completion records and supervision of recreation were Mrs. Leon Price of Tannersville, Mrs. Richard Van Why, Miss Barbara Borer, and Mrs. Floyd Wilmoth of Kunkletown, Mrs. Lee Brown, of Canadensis, Mrs. Oliver Seder and Mrs. Jules Muraro of Mountainhome, Mrs. Robert Fleming of Tannersville, and Mrs. Fred Faustick of Saylorsburg.

The nine clubs, under the direction of their leaders, have carried on their project work throughout the summer months, meeting regularly with their leaders and the extension home economist Miss Margaret MacLaren.

The final 4-H activities for the home economics clubs will be held in September on a date to be announced. This will be a style show of fall and winter garments made by 30 4-H Club members and will be presented in the A. B. Wyckoff Department Store in Stroudsburg.

The following girls listed by clubs received awards.

Saylorsburg Club

First place in "Fun to Bake"—Linda Altomus and Wanda Altomus. Second place—Joan Artz, Beatrice Artz and Donna Feller. First place in Clothing—Ruth Fenner and Patricia Fenner. Third place—Kathy Mondrick, Connie Kresge, Carol Altomus, Nellie Davis and Sarah Smith.

Clearview Club

Tasty Snacks—first place; Markee Cummings, Peggy Henning, Jackie Kitchen, Mary Metzger and Linda Weber. Second place were Susan Douglas and Sandy Price.

Tannersville

First place in 4-H Clothing were Patty Brader, Diane Butz, Janice Gantzhorn, Gail Gravatt, Harriet Horn, Susan Montgomery, Carol Munch and Joan Munch. Second place winners were Ruth Ann Flad, Nancy Dyson, Mary Horn, Barbara Janson, Linda Pipher, Mary Stanton, Marta Schneider and Virginia Webster.

Cherry Valley

First place in 4-H clothing were Jean Dennis, Sally Dennis, Sandra Lessig, Barbara Moyer and Gail Quigley. Second place Brenda Muffley.

Canadensis

4-H starting stitching first place winners were Barbara Brown, Gladys Brown, Marlene Doll and Sandra Taylor. Second place winner was Gloria Thomas.

Neola

4-H Outdoor Cookery first place winners were Barbara Kajar, Carol Kajar, Kathleen Kajar, Elva Schuler, Diane Shupp, Connie Smith, Georgia Smith, Susan Stulgaitis, Judy Veety, Karla Walter and Margie Walter.

Bartonville

4-H clothing first place winners were Sarah Jane Cyphers, Donna Lee Hartman, Judith Holdorf, Marjorie Holdorf and Holly Price.

Mountainhome

First place in the 4-H clothing were Nancy Caulfield, Maureen Conley, Alma Gravel, Cathy Hope, Stephanie Kintzel, Linda Muraro, Mary Muraro, Paula Rosemowitz, Sharon Seder, Mary Beth Wieboldt and Charlotte Weldaw.

Kunkletown

First place winners were Diane Bittner, Dora Borger, Judy Borger, Marjette Borger, Fern Brotzman, Shirley Brotzman, Janet Craig, Connie Kleintop, Mac Kleintop, Patsy Pearl, Pamela Van Why, Elizabeth Wilmoth and Mary Smale.

Question Box

D. K. of Stroudsburg: "Our Mountain ash is beautiful this year, just loaded with berries. Are the berries edible? Also, please tell me how to keep borers out of our tree. My neighbor lost his last year."

The European Mountain-ash, or Rowan-Tree (Sorbus aucuparia) is an ideal landscape plant, growing 35 feet tall, having orange-red berries which birds relish in winter. The fruit itself is not edible raw, it's not poisonous, as many believe, but does make a good jelly.

Here's a recipe one of my gardening friends passed along to me. First, barely cover the berries with water and boil until the berries burst. Put the resulting pulp through a jelly bag and measure liquid into a cooking pan.

Add sugar, cup for cup, plus one extra cup of sugar for every six cups of liquid. Boil until ready to jell by your favorite method of determining this. A leaf of rose geranium or other herb is sometimes inserted in the jelly after it is poured into glasses but before it begins to jell.

I have two other recipes for using Mountain ash berries for jelly, and these are mentioned in my new bulletin, How To Grow Mountain Ash Trees. This guide tells how to raise this handsome landscape plant, fight borers and other pests troubling it.

If you'd like a copy of this new bulletin, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No loose stamps, no clippings or postal cards, please!

F. S. of Reeders: "Will you please tell me why my gladioli have crooked stems. It seems to be mostly crooked. All the white ones are nice and straight."

Crooked spikes, called "Saxophone spikes" is due to an inheritance factor. Some varieties are more susceptible to crooking than others. To prove this trait you can plant them with non-crooking varieties and you'll notice how the bending types develop the beads, while the resistant varieties grow up right.

Control: Your best bet is to pull out the crooking types and discard them. There are too many good varieties on the market without resorting to the crooking varieties.

N. E. of Stormville: "Can Pansies be grown as a house plant? I've been told they'll grow indoors the same as African Violets."

Indoors, pansies often become straggly because of lack of light and too much heat. Pansies like cool weather and I doubt if you could grow them successfully indoors. We grow them nicely in the greenhouse where there's plenty of light and cool enough temperatures.

Raising them indoors is quite a job for the average home. Has anyone had success growing pansies as a house plant indoors? Please tell me if you have.

Question of The Week: F. R. of Stroudsburg: "My Blazer climbers have long canes on them, some 12 feet tall. They'll probably even grow taller. I've been told that these are wild, and should be cut back to the ground, or better still pull the bushes out and replant them. A friend told me that any stem that has seven leaves on instead of five should indicate the bushes are wild and must come out. Please help me as I'm confused."

Climbers and Ramblers often send out canes over 12 feet long. A natural thing for these bushes. However, since they are apt to whip around in the wind during fall and winter (and scrape the paint on your home) it's advisable to cut the (1) old canes out and (2) shorten the new growth to about half or more. Actually, the climbers are pruned in mid-summer, just after the blooms have faded.

However, you can't always follow the rules, and this is one I always break. My Paul Scarlet canes are always too long to go into the winter without wind whipping, so I cut them back about half and always have a showy crop of flowers each summer.

As far as the plants being "wild" because of the seven leaflets, this is an old wives tale. Practically all modern hybrid tea varieties produce leaves of seven leaflets when they are growing vigorously, although the five-leaflet leaves usually predominate.

Most of our climbers and ramblers also have seven or more leaflets, thus should not be counted as "wild" or sucker growth. Suckers can usually be distinguished from "good" shoots by the differences in foliage. "Wild" sucker growth usually has dull, light green foliage.

The leaflets are longer and narrower than in most cultivated varieties. Some understock will send up tall sucker growth with no sign of flowering. When flowers do come they are often single and very much unlike the type should be.

G. A. of E. Stroudsburg: "Should phlox be uprooted and burned if it is covered with a whitish powder each year. The plants start out fresh, pure green, and in spite of spraying, the beauty is marred at blooming time by this gray blotching."

Your plants have mildew, a late-season disease affecting phlox, lilacs, roses and many other ornamentals. No need to destroy the plants. Rake and burn leaves and old stakes which have withered. I use sulfur as a dust, applied before the disease appears.

You can use sulfur dust or spray now as an eradicant. If you spray use wettable sulfur, two tablespoons to one gallon of water, plus 1/3 teaspoon of a household detergent.

Be sure and cover both top and bottom surfaces of leaves. Also cut back all old stems in fall and burn. This is good for leafspot, another disease on phlox.

Remove Onion Seed Stalks Now

IF YOU'RE growing onions from sets, you may see some of them developing seed stalks. You'll do well to pinch off these seed stalks. If you don't, you'll have a lot of thick-necked onions that won't store well.

As soon as seed stalks have started, or even before they're three or four inches long, pinch off the tips, so the onion can force its growth into the development of the leaves and bulb.

Actually, the size of the onion at the time of planting is largely responsible for the development of seed stalks.

Winners At Wayne Move Up

WINNERS from the First Wayne County Horse Show will leave Saturday for the district 4-H show in Waverly to compete with winners from five counties for the right to go on to state competition.

Leaving Saturday are Ronnie Carlton, Jimmie Carlton, Donna Stevens, Dale Stevens, Michael Smith and Michael Campbell, all of the Newfoundland Area.

To be eligible for the district show the contestants must place first or second in the county show.

Winners from the show in Waverly will go to the state horse show in Harrisburg later in the fall.

IF YOU want to root a number of cuttings, use a large flower-pot. Plug up the drainage hole in a 3-inch pot, and place it in the center. Fill the area between the two pots with wet sand. Moisture will come through center pot filled with water.

Seeking Way To Fight Borers, Try New And Different Method

I FIGHT A BORER WAR:

For years I've wanted a good method for coping with borers in apple, pear, Mountain Ash, lilac and other trees. The old, oft-repeated advice: "Poke a hot wire into the opening and stab the borer" was a lot easier said than done, mainly because borers don't bore straight holes.

When my Napoleon Sweet cherry started losing its leaves recently, I knew I had borers. Small gum boils at the base, small piles of "frass" (sawdust), these are symptoms of borers, as well as small holes in the bark.

I tried poking a wire into the hole, probing for the borers which were slowly choking the tree to death by internal girdling. The borers were untouchable. Chemical sprays cannot reach the inside borers.

Finally, I hit on a better idea, build a gas chamber and gas the borers. I took an electric drill and drilled into the borer-made entrance. Then soil was dug away from the base, two or three inches deep, and calcium cyanide powder was poured into the trench and soil was poured over the powder.

Then a sheet of plastic (the kind laundered garments come in) was wrapped around the base of the tree and the deadly powder, and wrapped upward spirally to form a gas chamber. Fumes from the powder below rose upward and into the borer entrances killing borers which wire and knife could not touch.

After a week or so, the plastic gas chamber can be removed because the borers from within have been gassed to death. The hole can be sealed with putty or plastic wood, and the calcium cyanide powder can be left at the base of the tree, covered with soil. As a precautionary measure against further borer attacks, spray the trunk with DDT.

CAUTION: Calcium cyanide, obtainable at most garden supply centers, is deadly poisonous, and care should be taken not to breathe fumes or to leave the material where children and other irresponsible people can get it.

THE HOME LAWN: If you're making a new lawn, remember that grading should be gradual, and pleasantly sloping to lead the water from the house and off the property. Avoid sudden slopes, as they are unattractive, hard to mow and keep covered with grass.

If you have a steep slope, it can be handled by using double terraces, using dry stone walls, rock gardens, or ground covers. Use low growing vines for ground covers on steep slopes. Common myrtle (Vinca), Japanese Pachysandra (both do well in sun or shade), moss pink (ground phlox), baby winter-creeper (dwarf Euonymus) are all good ground covers.

Another good fast grower is Hall's Honeysuckle, forming a dense mat in sun or shade.

A dry stone wall, one made without mortar, comes in handy with a high bank five feet or more in height. You can use flat field stones or round "hard-heads." Flat stones are easier to build and need a slight pitch of one to two inches for each foot in height.

ARE YOUR BORDERS SHARP?

Why is it one person's lawn or flower borders have that sharp look, but that man next door can have a border with a down-at-the-heels look, even though he puts a lot of work at gardening? The answer is simple: keeping your borders sharp!

Good grooming of the boundary line between the lawn and the garden is half the battle. After you mow the lawn, the grass edge will look wiggly and frowsy even though the lawn has been mowed. A sharp border around a lawn, flower bed, shrub or tree is to the home what a necktie or mow is to a well dressed man.

Here are a few tricks for keeping your borders sharp looking: Keep the grass clipped along the edge of your border to give it a pleasing outline. The earth in a flower bed should be neatly cultivated or mulched. A bed should be edged first and then mulched for neater effect.

There are many good edging tools to cut sod or grass, and if you want to resort to using metal root barriers which help keep grass from sneaking into the flower beds, go ahead and use it.

Keep your annuals and perennials in ship-shape by snipping off dead or spent blooms. This pruning rejuvenates your plants by keeping them from ripening and dying. Sweet alyssum can be sheared in stages: cut half the blooms while other side builds up blooms.

If all the flowers have gone, shear the entire plant heads off and a new crop will reappear. When petunias have that sawn, sprawling look, it may be due to lack of water, or failure to pinch back going-to-seed stems. Although our gardening season is on the wane, there's still time to sharpen up your borders so your whole yard will have that kept-up look.

A SLICK TRICK: If your apple or other fruit trees have crotches in them you'll be interested in an idea an apple grower, Leonard McWilliams of Mexico, N.Y., uses for binding his trees together. He lets water sprouts or "suckers" on the limbs do his protecting of weak limbs.

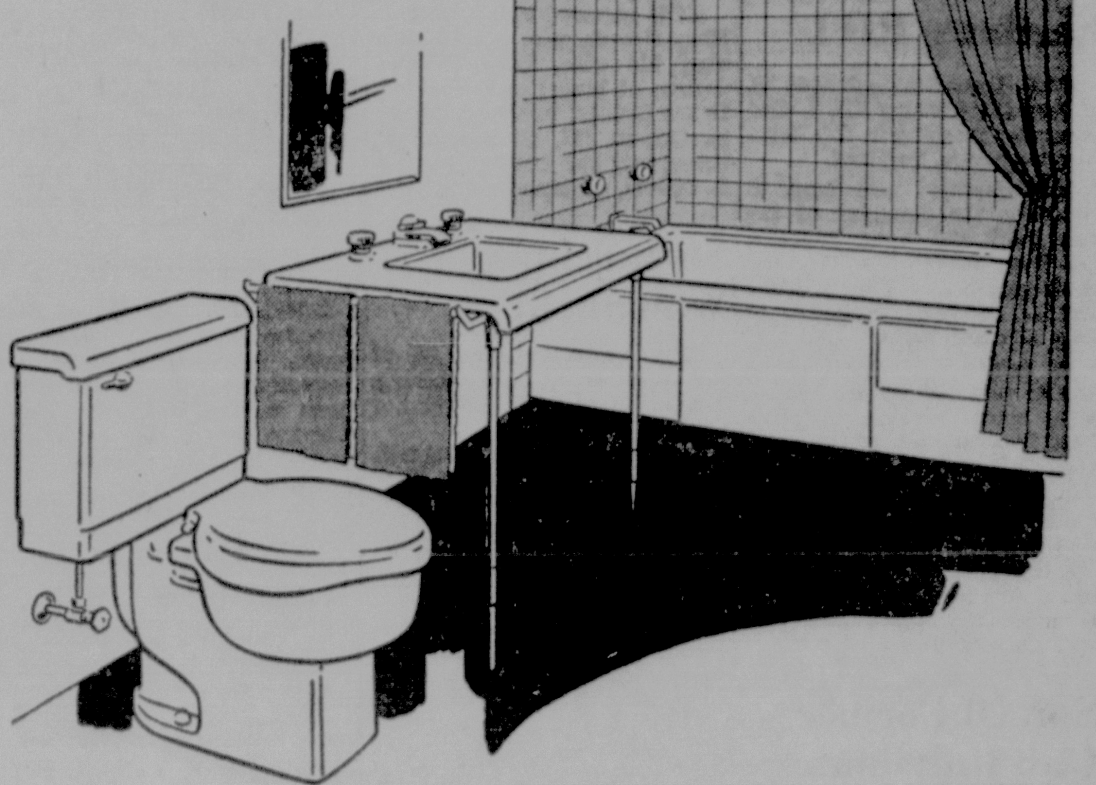

When trees are five years or so old, he selects two suckers which are about four or five feet above ground, and intertwines them together. To do this you grab one in each hand, bring them together, tip to tip, and made three or four "twists", so the bark of one sucker rubs against the bark of the other, in three or four places.

Then he wraps a piece of friction tape around the center to keep the suckers united. Year old suckers work ideally, and it's not necessary to scrape the bark. The water sprouts readily unite forming a perfect bond, growing in size as the tree gets older.

Spring or early summer is best time to bond the suckers together, and it usually takes about two or three years for the suckers to unite.

S-Burg Eagles Will Visit Wilkes - Barre VA Hospital

EAGLES from District 11 will visit the Veterans Administration Hospital at Wilkes-Barre on Oct. 24. It was announced at a meeting of Stroudsburg Aerie 1106 last night.

Donations of books, playing cards and games will be accepted by the group prior to the visit.

It was announced a district meeting will be held in the Bethlehem Aerie on Sunday, Sept. 18.

Two amendments adopted by the grand lodge at its meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., were approved by the local aerie.

Committees Appointed For Stroud Open House

PLANNING for the open house celebration to be held Sunday, Sept. 18 at the Stroud Community House advanced another step yesterday with the appointment of several special committees.

The affair will be held from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. and will be open to the public. The Stroud Community House Board will sponsor the program in cooperation with the Stroudsburg Junior Woman's Club.

Mrs. Robert W. Payne, past president of the woman's club and general chairman for the open house, announced these committees:

Four Groups
Invitations — Mrs. Clifford Heller, Mrs. Alphonse Meyers, Mrs. Samuel O. Wells III and Mrs. C. C. Scholla.

Hospitality — Mrs. William Hannas, Mrs. Edward Hess, Mrs. Claude W. Leister, Mrs. Robert James, Mrs. Henry Helie, Mrs. Lefroy J. Koehler, Mrs. T. Manning Curtis and Miss Margaret Mutchler.

Hostesses — Mrs. Weldon Garrison, Mrs. J. Joseph McCuskey, Mrs. C. Roy Hughes, Mrs. John Osborn and Mrs. Lawrence Levy.

Decorations — Mrs. R. W. Payne and Mrs. Arthur Schell; publicity — Mrs. Richard Shook, and in charge of first floor historical rooms — Mrs. Horace G. Walters.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Somogyi, Eastburg RD 1

MRS. Susan Somogyi, aged 76, of East Stroudsburg RD. 1, died yesterday morning in the Barto Nursing Home, Portland.

Mrs. Somogyi was born in Hungary, the daughter of the late Paul and Anna Ribicki. She lived in this area for the past two years, residing with her brother, Stephen Ribicki, of East Stroudsburg RD. 1.

In addition to her brother, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary Morris, of Ocean Port, N. J. She was of the Lutheran faith.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at Ralph Funeral Home, Williamstown, Pa. Interment will take place in town. William R. Thomas, of Stroudsburg will make local funeral arrangements.

JOSEPH H. Graves, of 3859 E. Rosewood St., Tucson, Ariz., who, as previously reported, died last week in St. Mary's Hospital at the age of 38, was the son of the late Joseph H. Graves, former hotelman of Delaware Water Gap and Associate Judge of Monroe County, and Mary Gray Graves.

He is survived by his mother, Mary Graves, who resided with him; his wife, Lavinia Yates Graves, at home; one daughter, Lynne Graves; two sons, Joseph H. Graves, III, all residing at home; and one brother, Forrest L. Graves, of Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg Woman, 87

MRS. Virginia Leary, 87, of 304 Wallace St., Stroudsburg, died at 5 p.m. yesterday at her home.

She was the widow of John B. Leary and a member of Fifth Ave. Presbyterian Church, New York City, and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Surviving are one daughter, Countess Elizabeth Von Furstenberger, Baden-Baden, Germany; a granddaughter, Mrs. Guy Vincent, New York City; two great-grandchildren and several nieces.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Dunkelberger and Westbrook Funeral Home.
